Mr. Valentine Pasvolsky

Dear Mr. Pasvolsky,

Thanks very much for your recent letter, and we are sorry to tell you that we are completely out of both red and black exhibit cards. It is too close to coin week to have any more run off, so hope you will be able to get along without them.

We know what you mean about exhibiting in store windows. It seems that many merchants are hesitant in this respect. If you have anything like Confederate Currency, Wooden Nickels, Tokens, or Medals, though, they might see their way clear to letting you exhibit them. Also, numismatic books and periodicals make a nice exhibit. Frequently you can convince Jewelry Store owners to accept a display, as they usually have items of value in their windows anyway, and have burglar alarm systems.

Again, we're sorry that we can't provide the cards, but wish you every success in your numismatic pursuits.

Sincerely,

Rick and Virginia Bronson

Please send me a batch of red
NCW cards - as soon as possible -

Store keepers in this area do not want displays of coins, currency or anything stealable in their windows - too much "monkey business" around here lately - and that would be an open invitation to vandalism -

However, I have placed all the red cards in store windows and other places and would gladly place
at all you can send me all over in public places in the surrounding communities -

Can use 3 dozen or more of these cards - Please use package
"special handling" to expedite delivery.
I'll reimburse you for whatever

postage you use -

Would like to do all I can to further N CW - but what is fine in some areas just is not good in others -

Best regards -

Valentine Pasvolchky -

Dear Catherine:

We will be very happy to try and clarify the points which you brought up in your letter of February 13, 1967. The written rules are necessarily a little brief, to allow for originality in the various activities, and to encourage new ideas in reporting your accomplishments.

Two of several alternatives are given for the first case you mention, where a non-member gave a talk to your club. First, you could report this under club activities or special activities, and take your chances on the points awarded by the judges. Second, you could entice this individual into joining your club, or give him an honorary membership, in which case, you could count the program under numismatic talks. Either way is acceptable. Be sure to request an ANA Educational Award for the individual, and make mention of this award in your book.

In the instance of the exhibit by a non-member, I would again suggest that you get him to join or give him honorary membership. If this is not practical, include material on the exhibit in your book, and the judges will assess its value to your report. In a case where your club was instrumental in having the coins exhibited during coin week, even though they do not belong to a member, some credit would be given. For instance, we knew a club which made arrangements to have a U.S. Treasury Dept. exhibit on counterfeit currency exhibited in their town during NCW, and they received some points for this.

As to the announcement cards, by all means include them, and particularly if they contain a reference to National Coin Week.

Hope we have helped. Don't hesitate to write if you have any other questions. Sincerely,

Anchorage, Alaska

Dear Sgt. & Mrs Bronson:

We need a few points clarified as questions have come up regarding whether we can receive points for displays and lectures given at our request by people who are not members of our club.

For instance we had a guest at our annual meeting, a noted collector from Anchorage, who displayed her Alaskan-Russian coins and beads and gave a 45 minute talk on same.

We also have a friend who has a continuous display in one of the banks here in town and it is estimated at a 1/4 million dollars. We have talked to him regarding this display and he is willing that we take pictures of it and he will write a history of his collection for us if we can use it.

Our Secretary mails cards to each member regarding our club meetings and would like to know if a few of these could be included in the scrapbook and if they would be counted. We do not want to clutter it up but we are working hard to make a good one and want to be sure we are doing the right thing.

Thank for this information.

Sincerely,

Catherine D Payton

Mr. & Mrs. Robert Payton

Dear Robert & Catherine:

Thank you for the recent request for National Coin Week supplies for use by the Totem Coin Club. We are very happy to learn that you plan to participate again in 1967, and to know of another husband-wife team working with the ANA.

We have tried to put many different suggestions into the articles in the Numismatist since August, and these may be of some use to you. The red & white and black & white cards are often of use in providing some of the printing for hand-made type posters. With colored paper and pictures of coins you can make some really attractive eye-catching additions to place around your displays. The red & white cards are useful as posters by themselves, and the black & white are handy to place right with your displays.

In a forthcoming article we covered displaying a little more. The main thing we tried to point out is not to bunch up the displays all in one place, it being better to have one or two cases in eight to ten places than eight to ten cases in only one place.

Consider the size of your scrapbook carefully, thinking about mailing and shipping, as well as how things are to be placed in it. If you are going to back any articles or pictures these can be done as you go along and save time at the last minute. If any of the displays are set up in advance of Coin Week you can sometimes get some of your pictures taken and out of the way so you don't have to rush the photographers so much because of the mailing deadline for your book.

Sometimes a picture of a coin or a display (someone giving a talk, working on the scrapbook, etc.), will help to get newspaper coverage. Use every newspaper you can, we know your facilities are probably more limited than some places, but you undoubtedly have other advantages to make up for these. Get the people in your club to thinking, and discuss it at your meetings with the officers and members. Sometimes unusual, but effective ideas will come to mind in this way.

Don't know if any of this will help. Best wishes for a very successful program, and the New Year too. If you need more of any of the forms or have suggestions, please let us know.

Sincerely yours,

Rick & Virginia Bronson

Dear Co-Chairmen:

Enclosed find the supply order form from the Coin World and as you will note we are ordering supplies for the Totem Coin Club, of Anchorage. Our Club won second in its class last year and we are out to try and make it first this time if possible.

Mr. Payton and I are co-chairmen of our club this year and it is our first for anything like this. Have been active in collecting for many years but haven't had the opportunity of being in a place where we could participate. We will appreciate any help or hints you folks could pass on to us as we can use all the help we can get.

If you have any information as to how to set up displays, or anything pertaining to putting on a better show and make a better scrap book we will be most grateful.

We want to get started on your work for the coin show and coin week right after the holidays and know it will take time and effort so we want to get with it right away.

Thanking you for your cooperation, we are

Sincerely

Satherine D Payton
